QUICKLOVE

ADDRESSING A SEVERE ISSUE

Since 2011, Medical Studies have shown an increase in Anxiety and Depression as a result of Online Content consumption, specially with Social Media.

MENTAL HEALTH

The over exposure of Online Content, and its current repercussions on society, has made the Medical Community to focus in the Studies of Social Media and its impact on people.

CONNECTING

In our current days, 'Connecting' is being heavily replaced for the act of 'Sharing Information.' While communication stays in the background, Social Media creates a notion of 'Personal Disconnection.'

SOLITUDE

As a result, this generates for Users a sense of 'Solitude', building a feeling of Fakeness and Superficiality.

ADDRESSING A SEVERE ISSUE _ studies

FACEBOOK

1. Has now created a new meaning of relationships in today's society: "Constantly being alone with others".
2. Being the most used by teenagers, there has been correlations found between the growth in teen depression and Social Media.
3. People who use the majority of their time compliantly consuming data (by themselves), where in a negative mood afterwards.
4. Made adjustments to the platform introducing a Snooze option on the News Feed. This allows users to block pages/people/groups for specific time frames.

INSTAGRAM

People who use this App explained how it has affected their body image, sleeping patterns, and the fear of missing out.

Examples range from dieting and working out excessively, making them more susceptible to eating disorders and body dysmorphic disorder.

UK REPORT

Scored as the worst Social Media App for mental health. Poll made by the Royal Society for Public Health in the UK.

REACTIONS

INSECURITY

Images on Social Media make teenagers constantly compare themselves to peers and celebrities, resulting in extreme ways to be like them.

HEALTH

BULLYING

71% do not believe social media platforms have done much to stop bullying.

5. 25% Facebook Users said they falsified some of their account information.
6. 24% of people missed important moments in real life because they were too busy trying to share them on Social Media channels.
7. 51% of surveyed people said they check Social Network sites at dinner.
8. Cyber bullying has spread widely with 42% of young people reporting that they have been victims.

CONNECTING WITH PURPOSE

Until our society is ready to know how to properly handle Social Media, Quicklove offers an alternative. People must gain awareness of the dangers that an unmeasured consumption of online information can bring. Those type of Content Platforms do not focus on connections, but Shareable/Updatable Content.

As a result, Users have large number of “Friends” they never communicate with.

With the help of social media, employees learn more in a shorter period of time. Results: increased productivity by 21,5%. (ASTD and the Institute for Corporate Productivity)

3) Sharpens Focus

4) Is a source for creative ideas.

Social Media is a place for inspiration, while the minutes spent there gives you time to filter the best ideas. (Kylie A. Pepler, Maria Solomou via On the Horizon)

5) Gives a mental break from the workplace.

Social Media gives your brain a break and works as a quick mood and energy booster. (University of California via Forbes)

CON'S

1) Makes your work more, but not more effectively

It's difficult to filter reliable sources, so you can end up using information that gives no result. (LikeHack via Social Media Today)

Facebook can make you depressed and thus less motivated, which leads to decreased productivity. (University of Michigan via Guardian Liberty Voice)
